Peter Szanto, an individual, Plaintiff,

VS.

John Q. Mc Shane, an individual,
a state actor, Judge of the Hennepin County,
Minnesota District Court, Defendant

USDC # _____

Civil Action for Deprivation of Rights

42 U.S.C.A. § 1983

Trial Judge _____

1. Plaintiff Peter Szanto is an individual, over 18 years of age and a citizen of California.
2. John Q. Mc Shane is an individual, over 18 years of age and a citizen of Minnesota. Mc Shane is a duly elected Judge of the Hennepin County, Minnesota District Court. Mc Shane is a state actor who intentionally and negligently in his capacity as a Judge caused deprivation of Szanto's civil rights by exercise of the privilege of judicial authority. Said authority being created by the state of Minnesota.
3. On February 29, 2008 Szanto began an action in Hennepin County, Minnesota District against, among others, Target Corporation.

- 1 4. That case, civil action 27-cv-08-5779, was assigned to Mc Shane 2 in his capacity as a judge of the Minnesota District Court.
- 3 5. Mc Shane did not reveal campaign contributions he had received 4 from Target for his re-election in 2006.
- 5 6. Target, after being duly and properly served, answered the 6 complaint on March 17, 2008.
- 7 7. Target was, and is, represented by the law firm of Bowman and 8 Brooke.
- 9 8. Mc Shane was the founding partner of that law firm Bowman and 10 Brooke, but never disclosed this fact to the parties in the case.
- 11 9. Sometime in, or about, August 2008, plaintiff read a case opinion
12 which revealed Mc Shane's very close relationship with Bowman 13 and Brooke. Upon further inquiry, Szanto realized, and came to 14 understand, that the close relationship between Mc Shane and the 15 attorneys at Bowman and Brooke was on-going and continuing.
- 16 10. Szanto made motion to Mc Shane to recuse himself on the basis 17 of that obvious appearance of partiality in favor of defendant Target.
18 Other of Mc Shane's acts of blatant bias, hatred and prejudiced
19 towards Szanto were also addressed in the recusal motion.
20 Mc Shane denied that motion without comment on the issues.
- 21 11. Mc Shane's failure to withdraw, was among others, a deprivation
22 of Minnesota Code of Judicial Conduct, Canon 3 mandating
23 judicial impartiality.
- 24 12. Likewise, Mc Shane's bias and partiality are violative of Minnesota 25 Constitution Article 1 Section 8: "Every person is entitled to a certain remedy in the laws for all injuries or wrongs which he may

1 receive to his person, property or character, and to obtain justice
2 freely and without purchase, completely and without denial,
3 promptly and without delay, conformable to the laws.”

4 13. Other aspects of Mc Shane’s prejudice and hatred towards Szanto
5 have included, but are not limited to:

- 6 a. allowing, over Szanto’s objection, and relying on unnotarized
7 affidavits to make determinations in this case.
- 8 b. failing to allow further evidence about defendants’ extensive
9 contacts with Minnesota even though a $3,000,000.00 contract
10 with a Minnesota’s largest bank was put into evidence.
- 11 c. denying Szanto’s application to proceed in forma pauperis
12 even though Szanto was fully compliant with MSA 563.01.
13 That statute is non-discretionary and Mc Shane’s denial
14 was an abuse of judicial discretion.
- 15 d. because Szanto wore a yarmulke to an appearance before
16 Mc Shane, Mc Shane became aware that Szanto is a jew.
17 Subsequently, Mc Shane intentionally scheduled a hearing
18 on yom kippur, the Jewish faith’s holiest day.
- 19 e. the attorneys at Bowman and Brooke submitted the affidavit 20 of a non-existent person, who affirmed under oath that he 21 was “corporate counsel” for Target. Mc Shane based a
22 decision unfavorable to Szanto on that affidavit. Subsequently 23 the affiant’s non-existent was discovered, because there was 24 no record with any Minnesota attorney licensing authority.
25 This subornation of perjury by the attorneys at Bowman and Brooke has resulted in neither punishment nor

1 referral to the district attorney by Mc Shane. Likewise,
2 Mc Shane's decision based on that false affidavit by a non-
3 existent person has not been corrected. Mc Shane's
4 acquiescence to this subornation of perjury is itself a
5 subornation of perjury and is a criminal act in office.

- 6 f. One of the defendants in Szanto's case before Mc Shane
7 is a resident of Texas. That defendant was dully served
8 and answered. That defendant is also represented by 9 Bowman and Brooke. Subsequently that defendant, through 10 Bowman and Brooke, made motion to be dismissed from the 11 case for lack of service. Both Minnesota and Texas law
12 mandate that an answering defendant has waived further
13 requirements of service. Nevertheless, Mc Shane dismissed
14 that defendant with prejudice from the case.
- 15 g. Szanto has pursued his case in propria persona. The various 16 dismissals Mc Shane has ordered have been with prejudice.
17 A reasonable judge, seeking to obtain substantial justice
18 between the parties, would have tempered his determinations
19 so that a pro se litigant could make amendments or otherwise
20 revise his pleadings so as to obtain the benefits of law.
21 Dismissal without prejudice was never considered by
22 Mc Shane, pending Szanto's amendment. Szanto's
23 applications for permission to file reconsideration were denied
24 by Mc Shane. In sum, the judicial discretion available to Mc
25 Shane has been abused by callous disregard for potential

1 correction of the pleadings.

2 h. When Szanto discovered defendants' perjury in their
3 declarations, Szanto sought leave of court to order the 4 defendants to appear in court and to make those statements
5 in a forum where their testimony could be examined. Mc
6 Shane summarily denied that motion.

7 i. When Szanto objected, for the record, Szanto said that
8 not allowing confrontation of lying defendants put him 'behind
9 the 8 ball' in his ability properly to present admissible evidence.
10 Mc Shane, in open court, mocked Szanto for that use of well
11 accepted vernacular properly to describe being put into a
12 disadvantageous position.

13 j. Mc Shane has had numerous ex-parte communications with 14 defendants. These communications only came to light when 15 Mc Shane issued ex-parte orders based on those clandestine
16 communications.

17 k. Some of Mc Shane's orders relied on Minnesota statutes
18 which proved to be non-existent.

19 l. Szanto reserves right further to expand these allegations.

20 14. These acts, and others, by Mc Shane coalesce into massive 21 procedural and substantive due process deprivations against 22 Szanto.

23 15. These various aspects of Mc Shane's failure to follow the law rise
24 in egregiousness to far more than mere judicial discretion or basis
25 upon which reasonable minds could disagree. Mc Shane's acts

1 have been blatant deprivations of both substantive and procedural
2 due process to which Szanto is other wise entitled. Specifically,
3 Mc Shane has robbed and deprived Szanto of his protections and 4 rights under United States Constitution Amendment 14.

6 Specifically:

8 “No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge
9 the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States;
10 nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or 11 property, without due process of law; nor deny to any 12 person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the 13 laws.”

15 Here, Mc Shane has intentionally, and / or negligently, denied
16 Szanto the equal protection of laws by:

- 17
- 18 1) consistently ruling in favor of Minnesota defendants without 19 any basis or justification under Minnesota law, (while at the 20 same denying Szanto the protections of Minnesota law)
21
  - 22 2) Mc Shane has ruled in favor of defendants represented by 23 the law firm he founded irrespective of their subornation of 24 perjury (plaintiff makes additional allegation that Mc
25 Shane’s knowing participation in that subornation of perjury

1 by various of defendants and their counsel was itself judicial
2 subornation of perjury. Subornation of perjury is criminal 3 conduct. A judicial officer vacates his right of office by such 4 conduct and plaintiff cannot be denied his right to redress of 5 grievances because a judicial officer has become
6 unavailable incompetent further to participate in the action
7 pending before him.
8

9 16. Mc Shane's motivation to punish Szanto sole and exclusively
10 because Szanto is a jew, by way of adverse decisions not based 11 on law, and not protected by judicial discretion, deny and deprive 12 Szanto of the equal protection of the laws as guaranteed by both the 13 United States and Minnesota Constitutions.

14 17. Thereon, Szanto prays relief by the setting aside of adverse 15 decisions made by Mc Shane against him.

16 18. Szanto also seeks damages for intentional and negligent infliction
17 of emotional distress which have caused Szanto harm in the 18 amount of $900,000.00.

19 19. Trial by jury in this action is requested.
